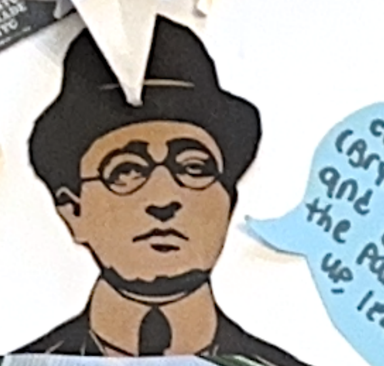
"Overall I feel like the market itself has watered down a lot, I feel like I really don't belong here anymore so I already decided this is my last year. But I decided that before I started."

"I call this Amazon Park instead of Bryant Park"

"You can't retire from a passion"

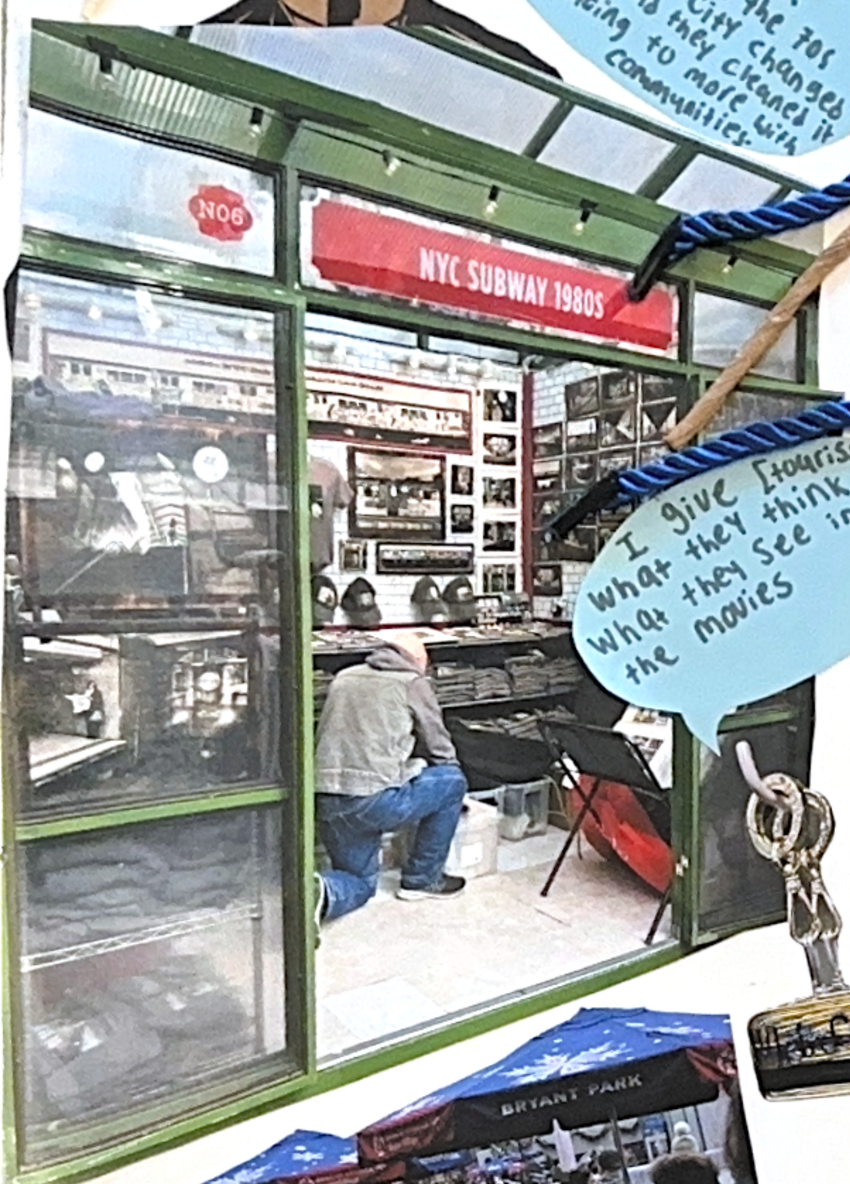
"The thing about being a local maker is that this market is so long it's really difficult to keep this stock you know what I mean? Like I start prepping for this stuff during march, since march I get ready for the holidays where as in corporate companies like that they get big shipments to their warehouses"



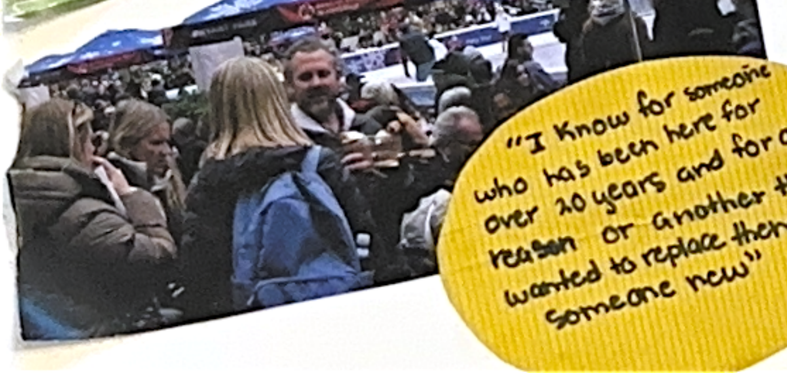
"In the 70s and 80s you would not come to this park (Bryant Park) in the 70s and 80s the City changed the Park and they cleaned it up leading to more with communities."

"[Bryant Park village] has a senior sophistication to it which is kind of co[illegible]" "Because it is so high [illegible]ies here a lot of the au[illegible] are not here and a[illegible] booths are comp[illegible] that are com[illegible]"

There is a vibe here that is way diffrent, not to say they aren't local makers... theres a small amount of us but most of these booths are corporate



"I give [tourists] what they think what they see in the movies"



"I know for someone who has been here for over 20 years and for one reason or another they wanted to replace them for someone new"

"This year I decided to be a city Bryant Park. I can engage with my own customers and can by taking care of them with love"

We are visited by people all around the world, I've been tracking where every has been from. We have had people from EGYPT, DUBAI all over SOUTHEAST ASIA even in the UNITED STATES, OKIAHOMA, I MEAN I have not even been to the places. It's a culture shock for them coming to Them NEW YORK City

"Everyone loves being here because theres no city in the world like New York City" "It's a community, the world is so big and yet so small so this is my own little bee hive"
